Constructive feedback

Instructions: Write using complete sentences and your visual language to help communicate feedback for the person you are critiquing. Write like you're having a conversation with the them. If you get stuck and don't know what to talk about use the Vocabulary hand-out to help you get started. How specific and detailed you get with your descriptions is what you will be evaluated on, so the more specific the better!

Remember: Be honest and Considerate with wording! Your job is to help make sure they are aware of what is working well and give them suggestions on what they could improve. Everyone's projects will always have areas of success and room for improvement. It's your job to find both!
